

Tennessee Tech School of Human Ecology Professional Licensure Disclosure

In most states, graduates must also obtain licensure to practice as a Registered Dietitian Nutritionist (RDN). Tennessee Tech's Master of Science in Community Health and Nutrition meets the educational requirements for licensure as an RDN in the State of Tennessee.

The School of Human Ecology has not determined whether these programs meet all of the RDN licensure requirements of other U.S. states or territories. The School recommends that students who plan to seek RDN licensure outside of Tennessee contact the appropriate state or territorial licensing agency to obtain current information about licensure requirements. For American Samoa, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, Republic of the Marshall Islands, Federated States of Micronesia, and Republic of Palau, it is still undetermined at this time, by the dietetics accrediting board, as to whether these areas require licensure or not.
