

ADVANCED STUDIES IN TEACHING AND LEARNING

You can earn your Master of Education in Advanced Studies in Teaching and Learning from an established, fully accredited university in the most flexible way possible - online and in a way that is convenient to practicing teachers and their schedules.

Advanced Studies in Teaching and Learning at Tennessee Tech

The Tennessee Tech College of Interdisciplinary Studies works in collaboration with the other Tennessee Board of Regents universities to offer this master's in education through the Regents Online Degree Program. With Tennessee Tech as your home school, you'll be based with a university that is truly focused on educational innovations.

This program is based on the National Board of Professional Teaching Standards: Early and Middle Childhood/Literacy: Reading-Language Arts. It provides advanced professional preparation in reading and language arts and is aligned with National Board for Professional Teaching Standards' core propositions.

All students in this program must be fully licensed and currently engaged teachers. The coursework bases content and learning experiences on your work in the classroom, with many assignments you will undertake with your own students

Coursework

All graduate students will take classes focusing on theories of learning and development, best practices, teaching and learning strategies, assessment, handling literacy problems and research. All students will maintain a portfolio throughout the program. Successful graduates must pass an oral comprehensive examination based upon their individual action research projects.

Faculty

The graduate program's faculty members live and work all over the state of Tennessee and use their experiences and knowledge in their course content to provide mentorship and opportunities.

For Non-Tennessee Residents

Tennessee Technological University is authorized to offer this online degree program in more than 30 states.
